It was on a Tues-day mor - ning, the sun was shin - ing bright
Thir - ty se - ven pas - sen - gers were boar - ding for the flight
Des - ti - na - tion San Fran - cis - co, they'd ne - ver get to see
De - par - ture boards were fla - shing U - ni - ted Nine - ty - Three
U - ni - ted Nine - ty Three re - mem - ber their names
Come tell of the time on that great sil - ver plane
The brav - est band of tra - vellers that e - ver flew the sky
Said "We're bound to fight 'cause we know we're bound to die."

It was on a Tuesday morning, the sun was shining bright
Thirty-seven passengers were boarding for the flight
Destination San Francisco, they'd never get to see
Departure boards were flashing United Ninety-Three

Chorus

United Ninety-Three, remember their names
Come tell of the time on that great silver plane
The bravest band of travellers that ever flew the sky
Said "We're bound to fight 'cause we know we're bound to die."

Half an hour in the air, four hijackers attacked
Blood flowed in the cockpit, the passengers forced back
They could see that these assassins were bent on suicide
Their dark and deadly plan must surely be defied

Chorus

Time was short, they all phoned home, said what they had to do
"We're gonna take the plane back even if we go down too"
Five men led the charge, a voice called out "Let's roll"
They crashed at Stoney Creek and became immortal souls

Chorus

A fireball of lightning broke across the hills that day
God knows what greater terror they defeated by the way
So when we sing of heroes who keep our country free
We'll remember the passengers on Flight 93

Final Chorus

Flight United 93...
